On a cold day of November. There was a cat wearing hot clothes. He was nice and warm. One year past it was November and the cats grew and did not like the cloths. It itched. He scratched and scratched. Until one day he joined a club. The club was about cats that did not like clothes. So the cats agreed to keep their owners busy, so they all did that, the plan had work for 6 months. But the owners had discovered the cats plan so they all went to the pet store to buy cages. The cashier was sad because there were no costumers so the owners ran to buy cages. There were 52 cages sold that day.

The cats knew what was going to happen. SO all the cats went home. But they were in the trouble. When the cats entered home ZAP! They were all in a cage. The cats were all mad.

The cats wanted to fight. No one could get them out. But there was one cat out of town. Except the cat was not smart. He got calls of his friends in cages. First he went to 10th Street Avenue. He freed 12 cats. Those 12 cats rescued 10 cats. Now they were 22 cats.

All the cats were marching with flags. They were all going to make a plan. They said "we are gonna land from the sky on the backs of them."
One cat said "yeah and some of us will be in front. We will win!"

All the cats went to meet with the captain cat's home. Good thing the owner wasn't there, so they all said "lets agree to where helmets just in case we don't get grabed from the head. SO they did more flags with a symbol of a claw from a cat. They were together for 2 days. Their owners were not calling for them.

Their owners knew what was happening so they all said, "We will wear armor. But they all said "Aww man. Armor is so heavy. The captain said "don't worry we will wear leather armor, it is not that heavy." Both groups were making the something, but they did not realize. Both captains were working hard so they all got ready. The cats had a big group. The cats put helmets on.

The cats were divided into two groups. Half would be in air the other half on land. They were ready. The time came they were attacking. They were winning. The owners gave up. They had no other choice. Or they would suffer more. The cats got attention and everything they wanted. Or else the owners would suffer. The owners learned their lesson.
